

Community fundraising all-stars

Many thanks to all of our volunteer fundraisers who are helping create a world free of MS.

Lisa and Barry Steinman revived their annual "Get Masked for MS" gala fundraiser in 2010, raising a tremendous $71,771 to help create a world free of MS.

The Steinmans, honored in 2009 with induction into the Society's Volunteer Hall of Fame, hold the annual event in honor of Lisa's sister, who's living with MS. Since 2004, they have raised more than $300,000 for the Greater Delaware Valley Chapter's programs, services and research for local people living with MS.

This year's fundraiser featured a hippie theme, "Peace, Love and a World Free of MS." In addition to dinner with dancing, the Steinmans held an silent auction and a costume contest to make the night festive.

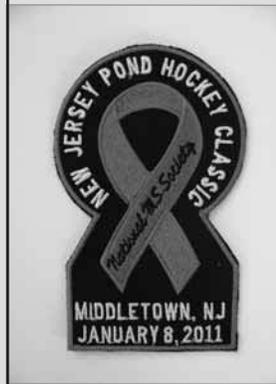

Beth Malikowski and her daughters, Kristen and Megan, raised $1,050 by making Christmas wreaths for their neighbors in and around Downingtown, Pa.

"It feels great to be able to send such an amount that I know will benefit many," she said.

The family will be making wreaths again in 2011. You can add your name to the interest list by e-mailing Beth at beth.malikowski@siemens.com.

The Newton Rotary Club in New Jersey donated $100 to the chapter as part of the proceeds from its Winter Golf Outing Fundraiser with the United Way of Sussex County.

Rowan University's hockey team raised more than $600 playing in the second-annual New Jersey Outdoor Pond Classic. This year's opponent was Monmouth University. Both teams have connections to MS.
